

45.04.02 – Linguistics

MA Program: Foreign Languages and Comparative Studies of Linguo-cultures

Duration: 2.5 years, evening-time studies

Degree: Master

Number of state-funded places in 2020-2021 academic year: 5

Tuition fee in 2020-2021 academic year: pending

Objectives:

Provision of highly qualified proficiency in two foreign languages (English and German), fundamental skills in linguistics and comparative and contrastive linguoculturology as well as of wide horizons in humanities

Subjects:

- English
- German
- Intercultural German Studies
- Modern Linguistic Paradigms
- Discourse Models in Various Linguocultures
- Communicative Didactics of Foreign Languages
- Contrastive Ethnolinguistics

Career opportunities:

Foreign language teacher in various types and kinds of state and private educational institutions (schools, colleges, universities), translator/interpreter, executive assistant, member of staff of educational and cultural institutions, developer, expert, manager of complex of social and educational projects of federal, regional, municipal state educational organizations as well as of international organizations, foreign companies, analytical centers and various management and administrative institutions. For secondary school teachers the successful mastering of the program will provide the career growth.

Entrance exam:

Foreign language (Abstracting into a foreign language of a text in Russian dealing with sociology and politics, morality and ethics or general science (text length – 1000-1200 words).