International Festival of National Cultures

"In this big world"

The International Festival of National Cultures "In this big World" is a unique event where foreign students become a single international family; they exchange traditions of different cultures and peoples. The event does not lose its relevance due to the special relationship between the participants.

Everyone is equal.

*Natalia Makshantseva,
Head of the Institute of the Russian Language*

"Tolerance is one of the key principles of the event. And in my opinion, tolerance is harmony in diversity, which our festival demonstrates from year to year. This is a real luxury of intercultural communication!"

The annual cycle of events is aimed at expanding and deepening the ideas of students about the diversity of national cultures, the specifics of traditions and customs of the peoples of the world and includes round tables, a photo collage contest, an essay contest, a national fair and a gala concert of national cultures.
